Date: August 27, 2009
Time: Thursday evening (8 pm)

I gather you together again, expanding your awareness to link in with all beings like yourself ready to evolve consciously, ready to be fulfilling your potential, ready to step forward consciously in your light bodies and move again with those beings of light helping each of you to understand your place in the universe and allowing the process to occur.

Come with me as we move toward the portal where we come into the entranceway to the stations of light - the spaces of light, indeed where we assemble and wait to be welcomed and greeted at this point by Elders, by the great ones.

“Indeed as you eagerly come forward here, we are ready to receive you and I speak to you as always representing those present in this area of light energy communication, Orem addressing you. Welcome as always to those who are revisiting this portal and those who are ready to accept more explanation and introduction to the patterns of light and the processes here.

Therefore, as you release all that links you to the manifested 3rd dimension world and you are eager to travel forth together as a unit within this vibration of light, we can connect you into the energies of the communication chamber.

This expands to embrace you and this draws you into an area that cannot be defined as such within your present understanding of any place that you have visited upon the Earth station. This is because this assembly communication facility here changes in accordance with your vibration of what is needed to support you here in an ongoing fashion and you can be assured that you are assisted in every way by companions assigned especially to you as you travel your pathway of light and we also have the watchful processing of communicators from other levels of existence.

You will sense many times the words I speak carry the message and vibration of a vast number of beings present here and of ones who have spoken in this way to many, many travellers from the Earth dimension. As you assemble in this space and wait, it is a transition area, it is one where the adjustments continue, it is one where your blueprint can absorb the frequencies here and so reveal to the aspects of your consciousness what is needed to make any adjustments between the communication processes of your blueprint and putting it into the depth of your beingness, bringing all into harmony. When all is in harmony you are more able to step forth freely into a higher understanding and realisation.

So, we have come to this point in these transmissions again where you may feel you are being changed in the assembly pattern of the vibration of light and all of that is contained within your blueprint, but there are dimensions to that blueprint and when your conscious thought pattern changes to open and accept that you are working in accordance with a beautiful unfolding, then that says that you trust for more changes to come so that you can adapt to the changes and embrace a greater vision, embracing a greater understanding which presents you into the open portal of a light frequency pattern moving you beyond this communication space.

What is upon you and around you is to bring your entire focus physically, mentally, emotionally, in tune with the spiritual essence of your light form and when you focus on that you are at a peak and you would feel the change occurring on the levels beneath that as they are drawn into the point of focus where your highest concentration and presence consciously exists and where you are lifted through that present portal which has opened for you here.

Do you understand that this relieves you of many situations which you may call burdens, because in this realm there is no such phrase because there is no such presentation of that which you would call a burden. What exists here is a freshness that embraces the concepts that allows the positioning of the earth station to be in a particular field of energy which is being drawn into another position and from this viewpoint where your focus is now, you would feel that process moving the Earth. It may not be seen physically but you all feel the shift and you all feel the process that turns you into the new direction that has already drawn you through the portal to this level of understanding.

As you are gathered here your energy field changes and you attract to you changes that can occur, viewed physically as instantaneous change. You only need to have the idea, if it is in accordance with this unfolding of creation through you, that will pass through into all the communication levels of you, and so there appears the instant change - changing from one thought to another - and you may recognise that this is rapid because it is a process that occurs and if you can sense that, you will see the pulsations that occur in functions seen with particular equipment as a flash - an instant flash as a thought process occurs.
