Date: October 08, 2009
Time: Thursday evening (8 pm)

Be perfectly still and aligned and be at peace with your self and with the world. Be at peace with all that is happening around you and move forward in joy, in light, as you become uplifted by the mere fact and focus you have into the greater realms of consciousness that you expand into in your realisations. So, come forth with me and we move again into the receiving area of the Command Station. You are with many beings again here and I see almost like points of stars connecting each one of us. Perhaps we each are a point of a star connecting between energy lines - thought lines perhaps - and we wait to be welcomed.

"I come forth indeed to you here Beloved. Orem speaking at one with you and I have assembled with me many others in the same energy system that we represent to you, one in which information is presented to you through the words in energy forms, in symbols and more as you open up and move forward to accept the next layer within the flows of energy.

As you adapt in this process here in the receiving area remember that there will be a point when you will be here focused physically, as a physical being, whereas here you are more in your light energy form. There will be a time when you will be gathering many physically here and you are prepared for this. You have walked this way many times and you understand the process of adjustment necessary and you understand that you have come here from what you might say a far distant future into the present here with the knowledge you have gained from - again terminology here - but, knowledge you have gained from the past which is all around you and which you at times can see quite clearly the difference in the evolutionary pathways. Then at other times you know that you have existed in the same way as you are in your keenness to remember and in your keenness to come forward and to bring forward many others. So, in this state of receptivity and acceptance of who you are, I bring you forward further into the communication energy space.

Here again there is the beginning element given to you. These aspects of energy systems which we call elements - and you are familiar with elements as they are referred to as particular mineral properties measured and known by science - and in here the elemental energies around you work to allow you to be more receptive. There are aspects within you that receive and there is the fluid movement around you here which sometimes we refer to as the crystalline energy and this also receives impulses within you. There is also the aspect or element of you that is waiting in anticipation to be given more training, to be given active positions. You are already active as you act out in your world the impressions you receive and the impulses where you will make contact through many different levels of communication to other places and beings, even places you see through the eyes of another, and you bring this with you here as you are present with us.

We then assess your readiness and as that is read through you and perceived, then you are moved into another alignment and in that process this is where portals open to you and new beings come forward to you, gathering you up or indicating to you another pathway and in many cases it is to reassure you of your place. There are some of you present within this communication chamber who are meeting up with people you know are no longer with you physically on Earth, but here there is the joining together again, a meeting up. You see, there is no loss. There is a transition into a new state of consciousness beyond boundaries and in phases like this you can receive the connections.

The main indication here with what is necessary for you to receive again is opening you up on another level and layer so that you feel even here with us you are emerging in a different aspect of yourself. Breathe in the energy in this space and feel the re-assembly here of different ones coming in around you. There are segments again of you who are stationed in different existences. We would have you understand that we are addressing you each who are able to come forth to be in the presence of the Star Elders once more."

"We welcome you here and we are ready to bring you through this opening to come with us into another sphere of existence that some would call the new planet for Earth. Here you will see a vibrancy around you even in the structures that will be here for you to be within at times when you need to be in a structure for purposes of rest or for purposes of meeting. There are many open spaces here and many life forms here who greet you, ones that on your plane of being on Earth you would call creatures, animals - an animal being a living physical form that breathes as you do, that has intelligence / consciousness and is conscious of the presence of others in support.
