Date: November 12, 2009
Time: Thursday afternoon

In readiness for another transmission I connect with you, bringing you into the energy of these messages, bringing you forth in your greater awareness and consciousness in that aspect of you called your light form. Allow yourself to step forward as your light self, within a strong aspect of light and this enables the transference of you very easily into our receiving area within the great sphere of light for the purpose of these transmissions. Be relaxed and open, breathe easily and gently, shutting out the every day world around you, and be fully attentive to this inner journey.

"In this space you are welcome. Orem addressing you and we speak at once to every being, adult and child, who is able to receive the understanding and hear the impulses and commit yourself to the impulses as they bring you into connection to the universal flow of information. This begins this transmission for you and in the assembly space here we draw you into the greater communication chamber.

You are prepared in many ways to uphold this higher frequency pattern that you are immersed in, in this space. You can uphold this higher energy frequency around you as you perform your activities in the Earth-plane and as you feel drawn to be in particular places, or to be with different people, or perhaps to be alone in a personal space, yet linked in to the higher frequencies and the change.

There has been a shifting in the aspect of your polarity in relationship to the greater universal expression and impulses since our previous gathering time together. In this space you will be aware that you have needed rest, you have needed energy to fill you, to bring clarity to you in many ways. We understand this. This is part of the process of what you are experiencing as you begin to open more to the greater areas of light frequency.

Are you feeling you are ready to step forward, but the step is not complete? This is how you are in this present moment. This is where you are rising into a greater performance and expression of your self and your purpose. In this process as your expanded consciousness merges with the greater fields around you and the dimensional shifts occur, you do experience being out of phase or out of tune and perhaps have been feeling you have not been receiving what has been required of you. The impulses have been with you and when you hear these words, you are receiving that in just sufficient clarity for you to maintain the awareness of these greater spaces of light.

While you are with us in these spaces of light, beneath you physically there is a change in the streams of energy patterns, likened to a stream of water you may be within and you will see that with the flow of energy / water there is a movement occurs and there is a change in what flows through the water, passing away from you, bringing new patterns within the water to you.

We use the expression of water because you are familiar with the flow of water, even if you experience it with your hands underneath a flow of water. So, while you are tuned into this space, there is change occurring physically.

The further you immerse yourself into the expanded dimensional frequencies, then you are gathering momentum - you increase the amount of energy you can be immersed in and therefore there is a transference of information directly into your consciousness, and consciousness exists around every cell. This is necessary in your transformation. You are being fed information and you are able to absorb what is necessary for you within that information pattern.

We are performing the necessary aspect delivered to you of the interconnected functioning of all of the beings who are helping in the transportation of the life forms on Earth into the greater reality that you are waiting for and expecting.

It has been required that you take a great step forward in evolution and this explains to you why you have difficulty at times sensing, seeing, believing that there is change taking place, for indeed you do not see it so much in outward manifestation yet, but you know within you there is a change - an opening up - and there will be the time as we have affirmed to you when the reality you are experiencing now will be that fullness around you.

There is experienced within this change a sense of tightening up of the earth pattern. This is the change in accordance with the spiralling pattern of the energy systems moving and bringing a precise pressure indeed into the patterns of Earth creation which then generates sufficient energy for the movement to occur and the pressure of the energy also impels people to look in new directions and to listen to what has been occurring within them, in their attitude and senses, in the dream patterns that you experience and in the general motivation
