Date: February 18, 2010
Time: Thursday afternoon 2 pm

I welcome you to this portal and I greet you and acknowledge you as someone who has changed and is going through change. This year it seems many places are being torn apart, as if there is a rift occurring, and yet many of us have made a greater commitment. So, with this I draw you with me toward the Command Station and as we near it there is already opening the portal to receive us. As I draw you in with me I have the sense of us being tall and slender, very focused amongst us all, and we wait.

"Greetings to you all here. Orem with you, Beloved, coming forward and I embrace you in great loving acceptance that we are able to bring forth from those of us stationed here in this physical presence of this Command Station.

You are beginning to sense the actual presence of this Station around you and it has become more real. Do you remember being here consciously, or in your dream experience, because we have indeed greeted many of you in these different ways.

So, as I view you all I see you are ready in the sense that your energy shifts and this pattern of the energy is discernible to us and we now bring you deeper within into the grand communication chamber.

As well as any words that you may expect to receive here, you are also being cleansed, if you like, aligned to the energy that you are able to receive readily in your light forms here. You would understand that there are many layers and levels and dimensions to your energy systems and what is achieved with you assembling here is such that you are brought into alignment so that your receptive energy sensory systems absorb quickly the impulses. In your daily life you are exposed to the energies in the same fashion that are available to all in the planetary and dimension system, but as you come here what is delivered to you is presented in such a way that you readily absorb it, so take this opportunity to draw into you the patterns, immersing yourself, immersing all your cells and immersing your great consciousness into this pattern of systems.

We see around you, as well as your light form, the energetic framework that we call your blueprint, greatly strengthened now. The patterns are strengthened. If you feel that you are lagging behind in how this is visible and active physically for you, make the conscious connection here to bring the formation deeply within and most of all, lovingly accept the energy, joyfully accept the energy pattern and attune all of your beingness in the physicality to one of joy. You see already the difference - you would feel that being taken in and the impression that you gain from this is more than when you entered into this space during this transmission.

This allows you to be open now to be brought forward to the greater light energy matrix. With this light energy matrix you would say the crystalline energy structures are here also indeed.

We open this space to receive the further transmission through the energy matrix."

"It is with you here and we commend you on your ability to focus within this energy. We commend you on the commitment and we make with you the steps involved to allow this again to come through the core essence of you - that channel within you, within your core, and you might see this wholly within your system here. That is our focus, bringing to you this core essence.

In here there may be some residual patterns of life that with being immersed in the energy available here, will surface to your mind systems, for you see a completely whole energetic being in this light force knows the actions, knows the potential to deal with the actions and experiences that you come into and this also draws you into the state of receptivity of the energy to resolve any matters that are still present. This is another level for you to experience and you might say it is on a very fine existence. In some cases of you this has very nearly dissipated completely from you, allowing you to embrace all that is available to you from the point of creation and therefore you are refined and you are refining what is around you.

This gives rise to that sense that there becomes the need within you to exist in a different way, in a different position. Allow this to filter through you, and the energy already changes what is there for you as you rest in this process.

Follow the aspects of creation that come to you.
