Date: March 11, 2010
Time: Thursday evening 8 pm

There is a great circle of people waiting for you, a great group, already assembled. Come with me, using my voice as a focus and perhaps having a vision of me as I connect with you and open the pathway through this portal for you to come and enter within the receiving portal of the great communication vessel of light. The sense is that there are many people gathered waiting; the sense is that they have been here many times and have been expecting to physically be here. We wait together.

“Coming amongst you now I enter this space with you. Orem speaking and I acknowledge you all. I acknowledge that there are many beings here who speak in different languages and I acknowledge the trueness in your heart and the energy that emanates from you which speaks. As you know, all who come within this space receive the message through the energy, through touch and through other sensory receptors that you each have. Language then becomes unnecessary apart from it being a useful tool through which you can travel and journey into spaces such as this well above the Earth station and into that energy system that has called you and also which recognises you.

We are assembling you each in accordance with the level of consciousness that you have evolved into and along with that, the groups that are working in different ways, in particular in the mind field that you resonate to in this space and that you carry forth around you.

So, with that said, we draw you into the great communication chamber. Some of you feel that you travel through a corridor, a passageway to be here in the chamber, and others of course you are here instantly and this is in accordance with your level of consciousness - that state of knowing that you exist where you need to be - and as that need is manifested to you, it brings to you the connections that we have where we are with you in an overall upliftment and supervising sense at this stage.

We treat you in here again with the impulses of energy which adjust you to this frequency. This also will serve to align you to again respect the greater matrix of energy which is upon you and which you fit into here and this matrix of energy is working through your mind field. You might say that it comes into your thoughts as a specific programme and network and link up and it comes into your thoughts also that contained within this matrix of energy is information that you need right now for your movement forward and for your settlement into positions of power, positions of presence and knowing. It also brings you into the areas where you can be redefined in your commitment and service that has been upon you.

There have been new tools given to you, a new understanding given to you and also that infinite knowing where to place yourself or parts of yourself so that you give forth the greatest energy flow to others. All this is within the matrix of energy that is embracing you and touching you. This is, if you like to say in such terms, re-encoding your blueprint.

Your blueprint that you have been drawing upon has been sufficiently cleared and connected into your vital systems surrounding your physicality for it to receive this higher level of activity and this comes forth when you have changed the energy information systems within you, within those receptors and through the change you will recognise that there are many thought patterns that have changed within you. Even when you look at the desires that have driven you in life, you may appreciate the change in those and a different acceptance. This point you come to in your evolvment, sometimes collectively as a group going through the same realisation and sometimes individually. You achieve the same state and presence within the greater unfolding universe, all as it has been designed and ready for you, waiting until that moment comes where you stand open-hearted and open-minded to be infilled with the current energy flows.

The impulse that you have been receiving in this message again reinforces to you your existence within the greater matrix of the Earth and therefore when you see yourself in such a living consciousness field you see how your influence and presence radiates out from you into a greater connected field. Become the essence of what you experience yourself to be here. In this state you experience yourself in a different way from when you are operating fully within your physicality and through the experiences that have shaped that physical unit. Here in this state with us you are more pure in the sense that as we have mentioned to you in earlier transmissions, that which you wish to achieve you have already achieved, and that aspect of you - the pure essence fully connected into the universe as it expresses - is also here with you - so you are One with that.

We give this to you again to remind you to be excited about that, to feel passionate about being this great presence filled with the light energy of the universe. It comes into you. It comes into the Earth.
